Missionary Trip

Are you interested in experiencing a unique kind of trip with your school, parish or youth group to Central America? If so, FUNDACCO would be willing to help you organize such a missionary trip to Nicaragua. FUNDACCO, Roots of Change's sister organization, can assist you in organizing a volunteer project for youth or adults.

Types of missionary projects

- Agricultural projects,
- Housing projects,
- School workshops,
- etc.

Lodgings

Groups travelling to Nicaragua can stay in inns or can be billeted with families. Your stay with a family will allow you to better appreciate the daily routine of local people and to experience their food, customs and language (Spanish).

Transportation

Each group must make its own arrangements for return air transportation to Nicaragua. Upon arrival, FUNDACCO will look after local land transportation.

Insurance

Please note that you must have your own travel and health insurance. FUNDACCO and Roots of Change will not assume any liability for accidents or mishaps during your mission. You will be required to sign a Waiver and Release form before leaving on your trip to Nicaragua.

Vacation Time

At the end of your mission, you have the opportunity to extend your trip with some down time.

A Word of Caution

This kind of missionary trip is not for everyone. One must be prepared for the extreme heat, the work schedule and the long bus rides. Unforeseen circumstances are a real possibility and an open mind and flexibility are essential.

Pre-departure preparation is essential to avoid basic culture shock (cultural awareness, Spanish courses, etc.).

This kind of missionary trip offers a once in a lifetime experience.
